

Top Wildlife Spots

Two national wildlife refuges are among the top 10 wildlife hot spots featured in Coastal Living magazine – Chincoteague Refuge in Virginia and Key Deer Refuge in Florida.

The magazine recommends hiking or biking Chincoteague Refuge's 1.5-mile Woodland Trail to an observation platform overlooking the wild horses. In Florida, Big Pine Key is the only place in the world to see the Key deer, a subspecies of Virginia white-tailed deer. Key deer stand just 30-inches tall at the shoulder. Coastal Living recommends going to National Key Deer Refuge in the early morning or dusk – newborns likely during April to May fawning season.
